

Julian Spillner
Director

Hey, I am Julian Spillner, a Director living in Berlin. Most of my work is based around humans, sometimes humorous sometimes serious. I like the possibility of bringing emotions to the screen by telling stories in a simple and plain manner be it for music videos, short films or advertisement.

I started doing photography when I was six years old. After working as a freelance photographer for three years I started getting more and amore into directing, doing numerous short films while studying digital media in Bremen and Istanbul. Today my roots in photography can still be seen through the photographic aesthetic in my work.

After finishing university I moved to Berlin to work at award winning production company Partizan. At Partizan I worked on big commercials for clients including Beiersdorfer, Hornbach, Mercedes and Bionade.

Having learned a lot, I moved on to be a director myself. Now I works as a freelance director focusing on commercials, while staying true to my music videos roots. My clients include Media Markt, Hannoversche, Sony Music, Spotify, and many more.
