

Borbala

Borbala is a director based in Berlin and London, driven by a restless curiosity about people, working across fiction and documentary. She loves finding beauty in things society overlooks, and translates feeling into dialogue, character and movement. Her work is honest and authentic, creating spaces where people's magic comes through on camera. She fuses humour with depth and plays with a dynamic, rhythmic sense of balance. Contrast is one of her favourite tools, and she uses it to make every world she builds feel wider. She blends the immediacy of social media with high production quality and softly blurs the line between reality and imagination, building singular universes for her characters to live in. Her films challenge convention and look through a fresh lens.
