

Sebastian Th. Brune
Director & Director of Photography

Sebastian Th. Brune is a Berlin based self taught filmmaker who draws inspiration for his distinctive, passionate and authentic work from a diverse background in marketing and his time as a professional basketball player in the US and Germany.

After ending his sports career, he decided to move to Berlin to study marketing. During his studies at the Kunsthochschule Berlin, he developed a great interest in photography. After completing his studies, he entered the professional world through a traineeship as an art director at Kickz.com. He then continued his work as Creative Director at DEF Shop.

Ultimately, however, he decided to become a freelance photographer. His clients include VW, Mercedes Benz, Aston Martin, ShareNow, and Share eventually accepting the role of Creative Producer Global for the company Share Now. There he intensified his passion for moving images and realized various campaigns for Share Now as a Directing DoP.

After his time at Share Now, Sebastian decided to shift his photographic focus to documentary photography and concentrate on moving images in the commercial sector.

With his structured and raw style, he tries to find new ways to tell stories, set impulses, and arouse emotions.

Sebastian's motto here is: Sometimes we need a bit of fantasy to survive reality!