

Christian Fröhlich

Chris is a Director of Photography and Directing DP with a focus on commercials and music videos. He began shooting videos back in the Canon 5D Mark II days, always hoping not to crash the camera with Magic Lantern.
Fascinated by the music industry and stage lights, he took his first steps by filming music videos for his friends' bands. His studies in communication design helped him refine his expertise in time-based media and photography while merging various visual storytelling techniques. Whether through dynamic camera movements, innovative angles, or creative lighting setups, Chris strives to create visuals that resonate deeply, ensuring each frame is a vital part of the narrative and evokes a genuine response from the audience. He prioritizes an organic aesthetic, aiming to capture the emotional essence of each scene, and produces authentic and memorable images that leave a lasting impact.
In this way, Chris found his place in the advertising industry – somewhere between medium-sized rock'n'roll productions and larger sets with a big crew.
